Activity 1 Multiple Choice
Our Brain

Read the following article carefully and then answer the multiple choice questions that follow.

Our brain is divided into two parts called right hemisphere and left hemisphere. Scientists maintain that language is related to the left side of the brain, namely the front part; that is, we speak with the left hemisphere. Therefore, injuries to the left side of the brain result in language aphasia, such as poor articulation and other language difficulties.

The period of brain development which is suited for language acquisition occurs before cerebral dominance has been established. Scientists call this period the critical period, because once this period ends, it is nearly impossible for language to be acquired. Initially, scientists believed that this period ended by the time puberty started. Certain cases however have proven this theory to be wrong. Children who grew up in isolation without learning a first language, have been able to learn how to acquire language speaking skills later. Yet some aspects of language acquisition are nearly impossible to learn after this point. For instance, a girl named Genie was discovered at the age of thirteen. When they found her, she was locked in a cellar without exposure to language or other forms of intellectual stimulation for thirteen years. Many specialists worked with her to help her learn how to speak. She did, eventually, learn some aspects of language and could communicate with those around her. Yet, she could not grasp grammar and word order. As a result of this case, scientists concluded that people who have not acquired language before puberty may be able to learn a language in a general sense; however, there are some aspects of language that they will not be able to learn.

Our brain works in a fascinating way. It stores new information and uses it according to need. This is why it is imperative to continually apply what you are learning. For example, if your mother tongue is Arabic, and you are learning Spanish, the information you acquire will only be retrieved when you are attempting to communicate in Spanish. Learning theories prove that long-life learning won't be achieved if not subjected to real practice. If, again, you are learning a new language, you need to use it over and over so that you can retain it on a long-term basis. When you learn something, you acquire new information. To retain that information on a long-term basis, you have to use it as often as possible. Remember, if you don't use it, you'll lose it!

1. In the second paragraph, 'retain it on a long-term basis' means:
a) remember what you learn and be able to use it.
b) forget it.
c) speak the new language for a long time.

2. In the second paragraph, 'according to need' means:
a) your brain keeps the information that you use a lot.
b) your brain does not store important information.
c) your brain deletes information if there is too much of it.

3. The part of the brain responsible for language is:
a) the left side.
b) the right side.
c) the front part.

4. People who have not acquired language before puberty:
a) can learn language in a general sense.
b) can learn every aspect of language perfectly.
c) can not learn language.

5. According to scientists, learning theories prove that long-life learning can only be achieved:
a) if subject to real practice.
b) if we lead a normal life.
c) spontaneously.

6. Injuries to the left side of the brain result in:
a) language problems.
b) language acquisition.
c) good articulation.

Activity 2 Multiple Choices

The Benefits of a University Education

Read the passage below and answer the multiple choice questions that follow.

Individuals benefit from attaining higher levels of education. Research findings demonstrate that university graduates earn more money, have more opportunities for promotion and better working conditions than those who are not university educated. University graduates have a raised awareness of their health. According to research findings, they take better care of their health by exercising more and having more medical and dental check ups. For example, when university educated women are compared to non-universit educated women, they are found to have healthier families.

Moreover, university graduates are found to have a higher self-esteem than those who have not attained a university degree. Compared with high school graduates and non-university graduates, university graduates are more satisfied with their jobs, they change their jobs less frequently and are more enthusiastic about life. In addition to this, university graduates are less likely to engage in illegal activities.

Society, in turn, benefits from having more educated citizens. University graduates earn higher salaries and pay higher taxes. This definitely benefits society because that money will be invested in social programs or infrastructure development. Generally speaking, university graduates have better problem solving skills and they are more inclined to treat those from other cultures or those of different opinions with respect and tolerance. By doing this, they strengthen ties among the members of their communities. Finally, university educated people are more likely to be concerned about their environment; consequently, they tend to be more active in their communities, volunteer more often, inform themselves about current events, and they tend to vote. This will of course increase productivity at work immensely which is good for the economy.

1. In the second paragraph, 'graduates have a higher self-esteem' means:
   a. graduates earn higher salaries.
   b. graduates are smarter than those who are not university graduates.
   c. graduates have a positive opinion about themselves.

2. University graduates probably change their jobs less frequently because;
   a. they have better working conditions and more opportunities for promotion.
   b. they are healthier than non-university educated people
   c. they don't engage in illegal activities

3. University graduates pay higher taxes because:
   a) governments want them to pay for their education.
   b) they have higher levels of education.
   c) they earn higher salaries.

4. Women who are university educated:
   a) tend to take better care of their health
   b) tend to take little care of their health.
   c) tend to take more care of their health than men.

5. In the third paragraph, "treating those from other cultures with respect and tolerance' means:
   a) to treat others with acceptance.
   b) to work with others even though you don't think they are as good as you are.
   c) to work with people you don't like being around.

Grammar

Present Simple and Present Continuous: Revision

Present Simple

Form: The simple present tense uses the infinitive form of the verb [with: I, we, you, they] and the infinitive+ s [with: he, she, it]. Look at the following patterns of irregular verbs, for example, and decide which one is the infinitive, and why?

did, doing, do, done rose, rise, risen, rising, heard, hears, is hearing, hear fell,
fall, has fallen, fallen gave, given, give,
giving, hid, hidden, hide, has hidden known, know, knew, knows, grow, grew,
grown, has grown

Use: The infinitive/ infinitive+ s (i.e. the simple present) is used to talk about:

1. Habitual/ regular actions (accompanied by adverbs of frequency) 2- Facts

Now study the following pairs of sentences:

1. a- Muslims go on pilgrimage to Mecca once a year.
   b- A Muslim goes on pilgrimage to Mecca once a year.

2. a- Orange trees grow in warm climates.
   b- An orange tree grows in warm climates.

Q.1- What is the difference between each pair of sentences? Q.2- How is the pairs in (1) different from those in (2)?

Negation and Question Formation

The infinitive/ infinitive+ s is negated with do not/ does not (contracted to: don't/ doesn't). Examples 1 and 2 above are negated as follows:

Muslims do not go on pilgrimage twice a year.
A Muslim does not go on pilgrimage twice a year. Orange trees do not grow in cold climates.
An orange tree does not grow in cold climates.

The infinitive/ infinitive+ s is also made into a question with do/ does. Examples 1 and 2 can be made into wh-questions, for example, as follows:

How often do Muslims go on pilgrimage to Mecca? How often does a Muslim go on pilgrimage to Mecca?

Where do orange trees grow?
Where does an orange tree grow?

You should notice that do, does, do not and does not are followed by the infinitive form of the verb. Negatives and questions of the like are therefore ungrammatical:

A Muslim does not goes on pilgrimage twice a year.
An orange tree does not grows in cold climates.
How often does a Muslim goes on pilgrimage to Mecca?
Where does an orange tree grows?

Spelling:

- Verbs ending in: (ss, sh, ch, x, o) add –es.
  I watch→ He watches
  I go → She goes
- Verbs ending in: (consonant + y) → remove the y and add ies

  I study→ He studies

But verbs ending in a (vowel+y) → simply add s
  I buy→ He buys

Present Continuous

Form: The present continuous form is made with be+ infinitive+ing, where be represents am (for: I), is (for: he, she, it) and are (for: we, you, they).

Use:

- Verbs of the form [be+ infinitive+ing] are used to describe actions happening now or longer actions around now:

- Tom is in his room. He is doing his homework.
- Tom and Lisa are busy in their room. They are doing their homework.
- I can't go out with you, sorry. I am doing my home work.

- With always/ constantly, the present continuous expresses complaint:

- Stay out! You are always coming late.

Note: There are some verbs that are not used in the continuous form even when they refer to the present moment. They are called stative verbs as they describe states not actions. Stative verbs include verbs of knowledge (know, realize, understand, think…), sense (see, hear…), emotion (love, like, hate…), relation (have, belong, own, consist of, contain, include, possess…) and linking (seem, sound, look, smell…):

- She used to have a red car. Now she has a white one.
Not: She used to have a red car. Now she is having a white one.

- Speak up, please…. Ok. Now I hear you.
Not: Speak up, please…. Ok. Now I am hearing you.

However, some of these verbs can be used in the continuous form when they describe actions:

- a. This soup tastes delicious.
  b. She is tasting the soup.

- a. I think he is right.
  b. I am thinking of all what he has said.

Negatives and Interrogatives

We add not to am, is, and are to make negatives:

- I am not doing anything right now.
- He/ she is not doing anything right now.
- We/ they/ you are not doing anything right now.

In questions, we use am, is and are, but in different positions:

- Are you doing anything right now?
- What are you doing?

- Spelling

1. When verbs end in one stressed vowel between two consonants, we double the final consonant.
   e.g.: swim → swimming sit → sitting

2. When verbs end with 'ie', we remove the ie and replace those with y.
   e.g.: lie → lying
   die → dying

3. When verbs end with 'e', we remove the e and then we add –ing.
   e.g.: write → writing
   take → taking

First Day in College

Listen to Nadia and Sara and work out what they are talking about.

Audio Script

Nadia: Excuse me, hello there!
Sara: Oh, hello!
Nadia: Is this your first day at college?
Sara: Yes, it is. How did you know that?

Nadia: You seem lost. How can I help you?
Sara: Well, I am trying to find the computer labs because my first lecture is being held there.
Nadia: That's great. I am heading to the same place. I can show you around the campus.
Sara: Oh, thank you.
Nadia: The building that is ahead of us is the Faculty of Medicine. It is the largest building in the university. Many students from other faculties take their lectures there because it is situated in the middle and its classrooms are spacious.
Sara: I see. Actually, I take my biology course there.
Nadia: Really? I registered for a biology course there, too.
Sara: Such a co-incidence! I will be really happy to be your classmate.
Nadia: Me too. I usually spend my time in the cafeteria right next to that classroom. So whenever you have free time you can pass by there.
Sara: What do they serve?
Nadia: Well, they make all kinds of sandwiches for breakfast. As for lunch, they prepare three main meals: hamburger with French fries, chicken with broccoli and pasta.
Sara: Yummy, I really like broccoli!
Nadia: Oops, we just passed by the computer labs! I'd better run to class. I am looking forward to seeing you in the biology lecture. Have a great day!
Sara: You, too! Thank you so much for showing me around.

Nadia: You're welcome ……, by the way, what's your name?
Sara: My name is Sara, and yours?
Nadia: Mine is Nadia. OK -- I'll see you soon then Sara.
Sara: Take care and thanks again.

Multiple Choice

1) Listen to the following conversation and work out the problem Dr. Mills has with her students and what Dr. Scott advises her to do.

Audio Script

Dr. Mills: Oh, my God! This lecture was a disaster!
Dr. Scott: Why? What happened?
Dr. Mills: I really don't know what to do. I tried many ways to make the lesson as interesting as possible, but the students didn't interact at all!
Dr. Scott: What is your lesson about?
Dr. Mills: It is about the water cycle.
Dr. Scott: Well, I know what you mean. I've found that, at this level, most students like to do things themselves instead of passively listening to lectures.
Dr. Mills: What do you mean?

Dr. Scott: Well, I find that my students like getting involved – actively participating in activities. They want to be active learners.
Dr. Mills: But I have all my lectures prepared.
Dr. Scott: Yes, but you might just find that it's worth it to include activities that your students can participate in. For instance, you can take them to the computer lab during the lesson and let them conduct their own research related to the topic and find websites related to the lessons. This way, they will be involved in the work and it will generate enthusiasm. Some of them will compete to find the most interesting website.
Dr. Mills: Or, instead of writing an essay about it, they can illustrate it in a diagram.
Dr. Scott: See, there you go!

Listen again and answer the multiple choice questions that follow.

1. Dr. Mills and Dr. Scott are:
a. students
b. parents
c. instructors
2. Which one was frustrated?
a. Dr. Mills
b. Dr. Scott
c. neither
3. The lesson was about:
a. genetics
b. DNA
c. the water cycle
4. Dr. Mills suggested:
a. engaging the students
b. taking the students to the computer lab
c. both (a) and (b)

5. Browsing the internet:
a. helps the students illustrate the water cycle in a diagram
b. may generate more enthusiasm
c. none of the above

Writing Focus
Summarizing

A good way to remember a story or an article is to think about the most important ideas after you finish reading it. Then write a summary. A summary is a short statement, in your own words, that highlights the main ideas of an article or the most important parts of a story. A summary for an article should discuss the main ideas and leave out unimportant details. Ask yourself who, what, when and where to help you find the main ideas. For instance, a summary should point out the goals of the characters, how they tried to reach these goals, and whether they succeeded.

Summary Guidelines

1. Consider the purpose and the audience for a summary before reading.
2. Read through the article carefully.
3. Look for main ideas while reading.
4. Concentrate on what you read.
5. Read the article again.
6. Paraphrase in other words the main ideas.
7. Write the first draft of the summary. The first draft should not be longer than one third of the original length of the article.
8. Revise the first draft of your summary.
9. Write the final draft of the summary.

Sally's Challenge at School

Read the following story quickly and work out the problem Sally had at school.

Sally's Challenge at School

Throughout my early years at school, my teachers always seemed frustrated with me. I would always hear them say: "You forgot your homework! You don't ever complete assignments on time! You are so slow! You're such a moody child!" I still hear all of those voices in my head and they bring back very hurtful memories. Those memories remind me of how my teachers used to become upset each time I failed to answer a simple question. I used to be the subject of ridicule in class. I also can't forget how my parents were worried all the time. They were always wondering what was going on. Even my classmates used to pick on me and bully me all day long. I couldn't wait for the weekend to come so that I could hide in my house and have a break from school. Truly, they were days I wish I could forget.

One day I read an article that helped me understand. The article was about attention deficit disorder (ADD). When I was a student at school, I found it difficult to stay focused for long periods of time. Sometimes, each hour that passed felt like a day. I just couldn't listen to the teachers for more than ten minutes. I felt deep inside that I had good potential, but my problems at school were making my life miserable. When it came to school work, most of the time I felt frustrated. However, when I read that article many questions about why those things were happening to me at school were answered.

Amazingly, I made it to college, but it was very challenging. To help me reach my goals, I started making to-do lists just to get everything done without forgetting anything. It was really hard to prioritize my work because even if I started with small things, they would take so long. When things became very stressful, sometimes I couldn't concentrate at all. At one point, I felt like everything was collapsing, even my relationships with everyone around me. Throughout my years at college, I failed many courses. Part of the problem was because I would sign up for too many courses, and by the time I realized how much work they would require, I would wait too long before deciding to drop courses. So I ended up with a lot of 'Fs'. College was a big leap forward though. I stuck to it and, even though it took me longer than it took my friends, I made it!

I still think the article on ADD helped me through many difficult times. Just knowing that others had the same challenges made me feel better. The article mentioned that the symptoms of ADD were not all negative. Adults with ADD also have many positive traits such as having free spirits and lively minds. The article also said that people with ADD have a spontaneous approach to life -- and that approach can be infectious. Although I was struggling in some ways, I also had all of these attributes as well. So the news wasn't all bad.

I felt as though no one could really accept me as I was. Although I had such problems focusing for prolonged periods of time, and I found it difficult to meet deadlines, I was creative. In fact, my boss once told me, "You excel at thinking outside of the box." This was one of the few times I felt proud of myself. It didn't use to last long though because my colleagues used to find a way to twist it all back to the fact that I wasn't as competent as they were.

After reading the article, I realized that I wasn't the only one who was facing these challenges. I scheduled an appointment with a counselor so that I could discuss my issues with someone who understood my specific challenges. I also wanted to find out whether treatment would be appropriate for me. The ball was in my court. I decided to put all of my energy into getting things on track. I joined the ADD Association where I met other people who also had ADD. Together we shared our experiences, laughed together and cried together, but mostly we all began feeling less alone in dealing with our challenges. Together, we began to look at the bright side of our situations. Things are much better now, and will still improve tremendously if I keep it up. And, the good news is: I AM KEEPING IT UP!

Read the story again and answer the following questions.

1. The narrator's life began to change dramatically when:
    a. she read an article about ADD.
    b. she used to hear many disturbing comments throughout her early years at school.
    c. she used to ignore all the disturbing comments directed to her.

2. When the narrator was a student at school, she:
    a. used to be able to pay attention.
    b. found it difficult to stay focused.
    c. used to have lots of friends.

3. The narrator was devastated because:
    a. she knew she didn't have potential.

b. of her problems at school.
c. she was brilliant.

4. When she enrolled in college, she:
   a. had everything fixed by that time.
   b. turned into an organized person.
   c. had to deal with many stressful situations.

5. "I started looking at the bright side," means:
   a. she was a fun person.
   b. she appreciated everything her eyes fell on.
   c. she looked at things in a positive way.

6. The second step she took after reading the article was:
   a. putting all her energy to work things out.
   b. setting an appointment with a counselor.
   c. working on her self-esteem.

7. "Thinking out of the box" means:
   a. thinking negatively.
   b. thinking positively.
   c. thinking in a creative way.

8. "The ball was in my court" means:
   a. she was a good football player.
   b. everything was up to her.
   c. everything was under control.

Maria's Presentation Experience

Read the following story quickly and find out about Maria's problem.

Maria's Presentation Experience

One day Maria's professor told the class that each of them had to do a presentation. Maria was a good student, so she enjoyed doing the research, but the thought of presenting it made her feel extremely anxious. She pleaded with her professor, but she couldn't persuade him to let her hand in an assignment instead. There was no way out – she had to do the presentation.

Maria was the kind of person who had few friends at school. Although she was a lovely person, she had a continuous fear of saying something that would lead to embarrassing her in front of everyone. In fact, that was why she often spent most of her time alone or with her best friend, Sam, who was the only person she felt comfortable with.

People with social phobia usually find their anxiety triggered by situations such as: being the centre of attention, being watched or observed while doing something, having to speak in public or even having eye contact with others. The thought of standing in front of the class to give a presentation horrified Maria. She was worried that she would embarrass herself in public and would start blushing, and sweating excessively. What if she had nausea? She was not ready to deal with all of that. Deep inside she knew she was had to confront her fears.

Two weeks before the due date of the presentation, Sam gave Maria a book about social phobia self care. The book helped Maria understand, live with and, eventually, overcome her phobia. Maria had to shift her feelings and turn them into positive thoughts. She had to stop the negative thoughts that that caused her fear of social situations. Once she was able to identify these negative thoughts, she would be able to challenge them. She wanted to steer herself away from denial and face reality. Instead of saying, "I am going to look stupid," she thought, "Even if I am nervous, will people necessarily think I look stupid?" Instead of, "I don't have anything interesting to say," she thought, "I worked hard to make sure that I knew a lot about my research topic so I will have lots of interesting things to say." By changing her way of thinking, Maria was able to perceive anxiety-triggering situations. Sam's friendship helped too.

The day of the presentation approached. Maria was so nervous that she vomited. "I can do it!" Maria kept on reminding herself. "I can do it and I will!" she said repeatedly. On stage, she slipped many times but she just paused for a moment, and refused to let her fears take over. She simply focused on the present moment, took a deep breath and continued. Maria was so grateful to Sam for providing her with that book. That presentation was an enormous challenge, but Maria succeeded.

Read the story again and find out whether the following statements are true or false.

1. Social Phobia is an overwhelming fear of embarrassment in everyday situations.

TRUE FALSE

2. For a person with social phobia, being the center of attention is the worst thing.

Grammar

Focus 1: Simple Past

Simple Past

1. Form:

When we form the past simple we should take into account whether the verb is regular or irregular. Regular verbs form their past tense by adding (-ed) to the base form. For example:

Play - played
Visit - visted

Irregular verbs have no general rule that govern the formation of the past simple.

Base form	Simple past
have	had
is	was
are	were
go	went
give	gave

2. Use:

The simple past refers to an action that started and ended at specific points in the past (yesterday, ago, last week, in 2001, in the past, at the time, etc). Look at the following sentences:

1. Ahmed visited his parents last weekend.

2. The new manager met the sales rep. this morning. .

3. Negative:

In both regular and irregular verbs the negative form is formed with did not + base (contracted as didn't + base).

Ahmed visited his parents last weekend.	Ahmed did not visit his parents last weekend.
The new manager met the sales rep. this morning.	The new manager did not meet the sales rep. this morning.

4. Interrogative:

In both regular and irregular verbs the interrogative form is formed with (did + subject + base).

Ahmed visited his parents last weekend.	Did Ahmed visit his parents last weekend?
The new manager met the sales rep. this morning.	Did the new manager meet the sales rep. this morning?
Sally left two hours age.	When did Sally leave?
Sami killed a snake last night.	What did Sami kill last night?

5. Exception: Verb (to be)

She was absent yesterday.	Was she absent yesterday?
They were absent yesterday.	Were they absent yesterday?

6. Spelling rules:

The spelling of the verb is changed before adding the (-ed) in the following two cases:
1. In verbs ending in a consonat preceded by a vowel, double the consonant. (on the stipulation that the verv be monosyllabic or edns in a stressed syllable):

rub - rubbed
plug - plugged
prfer - preferred

commit - committed

2. In verbs ending in (-y) preceded by a consonant, change the (-y) into (i).
e.g:
study – studied try - tried

3. In verbs ending in (- c) the (- c) is changed into (-ck):
traffic - trafficked
picnic - picnicked

4. In verbs ending in (-l) preceded by a vowel, the (-l) is doubled:
travel - travelled rebel - rebelled

Focus 2: Past Continuous Tense

* Form: was/were + verb/ing

The past continuous tense is used to refer to:

1. An action that was in the middle of happening at a stated point of time in the past.
   E.g.: At 8 o'clock last night she was working on her presentation.

2. For two or more actions which were happening at the same time in the past.
   e.g.: While Maggy was explaining binge eating, Sally was listening attentively.

3. A past action which was in progress when another action interrupted it. We use the past continuous for the interrupted action and past simple for the action which interrupts it.
   e.g.: She was pleading with her professor when Sam called.

Affirmative	Negative		Interrogative
	Long Form	Contraction
I was gorging.	I was not gorging.	I wasn't gorging.	Was I gorging?
You were stockpiling	You were not stockpiling	You weren't stockpiling.	Were you stockpiling?
He was	He was not	He wasn't contributing	Was he contributing?

contributing	contributing
She was pleading	She was not pleading	She wasn't pleading	Was she pleading?
It was collapsing	It was not collapsing	It wasn't collapsing	Was it collapsing?
We were chatting	We were not chatting	We weren't chatting	Were we chatting?
You were twisting	You were not twisting	You weren't twisting	Were you twisting?
They were talking	They were not talking	They weren't talking	Were they talking?

Autism

Autism is a brain disorder that impedes the brain from absorbing information. It leads to an inability to communicate with others, and it frequently disrupts education and social behavior and affects how a child talks, plays or interacts.

The symptoms of autism vary from one person to another, but they all share the following main characteristics. Typically, autistic children have difficulty understanding what others are thinking and feeling. They seem to live in their own world. They have trouble sharing emotions and making friends because they lack interest in people around them or the surrounding environment. Autistic children often perform repeated hand movements, such as playing the same game repeatedly. In fact, this is also considered to be a main symptom of autism. In addition to that, autistic children are extremely sensitive to change. For instance, they are disturbed by small changes in their routine, such as moving from one place to another. They also respond negatively to everyday sounds because they are so overly sensitive to sounds.

Melanie is a married woman who has three children. When her third child arrived, things just didn't seem right. At the age of 6 months, her child didn't show any joyful expressions or even smile. When her son was two years old, he still couldn't pronounce a word. He never looked at her when she talked to him. She tried many times to make eye contact with her son, but couldn't. He used to spend many hours just stacking blocks - one on top of the other. Whenever they fell, he would cry a bit, then he would just begin stacking them all over again. If they put him in front of the TV, he would spend hours watching without any movement. She realized that his behavior wasn't really normal. When she took him to the pediatrician, she received the shock of her life – she found out that her son was autistic.

Life was harsh for Melanie and the people around her didn't make it any easier. If she took her son to a park, the other kids would stare in astonishment at her son's behavior. The mothers would say things like "What's wrong with your son?" No one really understood which made her feel very lonely. However, she found an organization for people who shared the same challenges. They also had autistic children. Having an autistic child wasn't something easy to talk about. She felt better when she joined this group because the members shared their experiences with each other. She felt they knew exactly what she was going through, because they were going through the same vicious cycle. Suddenly, she didn't feel quite as alone. In spite of everything, Melanie, like the other parents, loved their autistic children.

1. Autism is:
    a. a brain disorder that affects a child's development.
    b. lacking the ability to communicate.
    c. having the difficulty to understand what other people think or feel.

2. The symptoms of autism are:
    a. being stressed and unfocused.
    b. inability to communicate and repetitive behavior.
    c. talking and laughing too much.

3. Melanie's autistic child was:
    a. the fourth child.
    b. the third child.
    c. the second child.

4. At first, Melanie thought her child's behavior was:
    a. positive.
    b. negative.
    c. neutral.

5. People around her used to:
    a. stare at her son's behavior in astonishment.
    b. make fun of her son's behavior.
    c. tell her to keep her son quiet.

6. Melanie started feeling better when she:
    a. went to a counselor.
    b. joined an organization for parents with autistic children.
    c. ignored her autistic child.

Writing Focus

The Topic Sentence

The topic sentence states the main idea of a paragraph.
The first sentence in the paragraph is usually the topic sentence. The topic sentence informs the reader of what the paragraph is going to be about.

Supporting Sentences

The sentences that follow the topic sentence provide specific information that supports the main idea in the topic sentence.
A paragraph should have enough information to develop the topic sentence. If that is not the case, you will end up with a weak paragraph; empty and uninteresting. To make your paragraph effective, you should have a minimum of three supporting sentences. If appropriate, provide examples as well.

The Concluding Sentence

The concluding sentence may be used to summarize or restate the paragraph's main idea.
Sometimes a paragraph may be long and complicated or may include details that the writer wants to emphasize. Such a paragraph may end with a concluding sentence that sums up the key points made in the paragraph.

Activity 1

Nepotism

Read the following article and then circle the multiple choice questions that follow.

Nepotism in America

1. What is nepotism?
2. Does nepotism exist in your country?

The word nepotism means favoritism toward family or relatives. Generally, people understand nepotism to mean providing opportunities to relatives even when other people who are competing for the same positions may have better qualifications. For many Americans, the word nepotism conjures up images of unworthy, incompetent people taking opportunities from more deserving people. As a result, nepotism often causes resentment in those who have not been born into affluent or privileged families. Frequently, people refer to children of wealthy families as being born 'with a silver spoon in their mouths,' to say that these people did not earn their opportunities.

When we look at the world of business, for instance, many of the Fortune 500 businesses began as family businesses. Consequently, in many of these businesses, the founders have been appointing their relatives to powerful positions in these companies. The Ford Company and McGraw-Hill Publishing are just two examples of family run businesses.

Let's look at nepotism in politics as another example. George Bush was born into a very powerful and rich family. His father, George Bush Senior was the former President and his brother was the governor of Florida. When George W. Bush won the 2000 presidential election, many who voted for his opponent, Al Gore Junior, pointed to Bush's victory as the result of nepotism. Similarly, when John F. Kennedy appointed his brother, Robert Kennedy, as Attorney General, he was accused of nepotism.

We can also see many instances of nepotism in the film industry as well. Famous parents have used their contacts, wealth and power to provide their children with opportunities to become famous. The Baldwin family, Sylvester Stallone, Martin Sheen, Goldie Hawn and Kirk Douglas are all examples of actors who have given opportunities to their sons or daughters. As a result, their children are famous celebrities.

It is not all bad though. Many people argue that opportunities should be given to those people who deserve them, based on merit instead of family ties. Others argue that nepotism helps to strengthen family ties. By strengthening family ties, nepotism upholds the very foundation of human communities.

1. Critics say that opportunities should:
a) go to members of powerful families.
b) be given based on merit.
c) be given based on family ties.

2. Nepotism in America:
a) happens only in politics.
b) happens only in business.
c) happens in many aspects of life.

3. Sylvester Stallone is one example of:
a) a parent who provided his child with the opportunity to succeed in business.
b) a parent who provided his child with the opportunity to succeed in politics .
c) a parent who provided his child with the opportunity to succeed in acting.

4. Being born with a 'silver spoon in their mouths' means:
a) not being able to say anything intelligent.
b) having opportunities they didn't earn but have because of the influence of their families.
c) only caring about silver.

5. Some people argue that the positive side of nepotism is that it:
a) provides the best and brightest people with opportunities.
b) only exists in America.
c) makes family ties stronger.

6. In the first paragraph, affluent means:
a) wealthy
b) mean
c) unworthy

Grammar

Grammar Focus 1: Past Perfect

Past perfect:

1. Form:

The past perfect is form with had + past participle

I	had	arrived
we	had	arrived
you	had	arrived
they	had	arrived
he	had	arrived
she	had	arrived
it	had	arrived

2. Use:

The past perfect is mainly used to show you which of two events happened first. Some words are used to show arrangement of events such as after, before, and when.

Study the following examples:

1. Sally had studied English before she moved to New York.
2. Ali and Ahmed were able to get a hotel room because they had booked in advance.
3. Ahmed had already posted the letter when I saw him yesterday.

In sentence number one, foe example, the action of studying English took place before the action of moving to New York.

3. Negative:

- The past perfect is negated by adding not to had:

I	had	not	arrived
we	had	not	arrived
you	had	not	arrived
they	had	not	arrived
he	had	not	arrived
she	had	not	arrived
it	had	not	arrived

5. Interrogative:

To make a question the subject and had change places.

Had	I	called him before I left?
Had	we	called him before we left?
Had	you	called him before you left?
Had	they	called him before they left?
Had	he	called him before he left?
Had	she	called him before she left?
Had	it (the game)	finished before we left?

Grammar Focus 2: Present Perfect

1. Form:

Have/has + past participle

I	have	finished
we	have	finished
you	have	finished
they	have	finished
he	has	finished
she	has	finished
it	has	finished

Examples:

- She has just arrived.
- They have already posted the letter.
- Have you ever been to Mecca?

2. Use

- The present perfect is used to describe actions that happened at an indefinite point in the past. The present perfect is used with words like: Just, yet, since, for, recently, already, etc. Study the following example:

  She has gone to work.

  In this example we do not know exactly when the action took place.

- The present perfect is used to describe an action that started and still continuous, especially when used with since and for:

  Sally has lived in Amman since 1990.
  Ahmed has been a teacher for ten years.

3. Negative:

The present perfect is negated by adding not to have/has.

I	have	not	finished.
we	have	not	finished.
you	have	not	finished.
they	have	not	finished.
he	has	not	finished.
she	has	not	finished.
it	has	not	finished

4. Interrogative:

To make a question the subject and the auxiliary (have/has) change places.

Have	I	finished?	Yes, I have. No I have not.
Have	we	finished?	Yes, we have. No we have not.
Have	you	finished?	Yes, I have. No I have not.
Have	they	finished?	Yes, they have. No they have not.
Has	he	finished?	Yes, he has. No he has not.
Has	she	finished?	Yes, she has. No she has not.
Has	it (the game)	finished?	Yes, it has. No it has not.

When	have	I	finished?
When	have	we	finished?
When	have	you	finished?
When	have	they	finished?
When	has	he	finished?
When	has	she	finished?
When	has	it (the game)	finished?

Grammar Focus 3: Present Perfect Continuous

1. Form: has (or) have + been + verb/ing

I	have	been	studying
we	have	been	studying
you	have	been	studying
they	have	been	studying
he	has	been	studying
she	has	been	studying
it	has	been	studying

2. Use

The present perfect continuous tense is used to refer to:

1. an action which started in the past and continue up to the present, for instance: I have been packing my case all morning. (I'm still packing.)
2. continuous past actions which have visible results or effect in the present, for instance: They have been working late. (They look exhausted.)
3. express irritation, anger, annoyance, explanation or criticism, for instance: Have you been reading my project? (Showing anger)

- Time Adverbs used with the present perfect continuous:
  - since
  - for
  - how long

Grammar Focus 4

Past Perfect Continuous

The structure of the Past Perfect Continuous tense is:

subject	+	had	+	been	+	Verb + ing

Look at these example sentences with the Past Perfect Continuous tense:

	subject	auxiliary verb		auxiliary verb	main verb
+	I	had		been	working.
+	You	had		been	playing	tennis.
-	It	had	not	been	working	well.
-	We	had	not	been	expecting	her.
?	Had	you		been	drinking?
?	Had	they		been	waiting	long?

Contraction with Past Perfect Continuous

When we use the Past Perfect Continuous in speaking, we often contract the subject and the first auxiliary verb. We also sometimes do this in informal writing.

I had been	I'd been
you had been	you'd been
he had been she had been it had been	he'd been she'd been it'd been
we had been	we'd been
they had been	they'd been

- He'd been drinking all day yesterday.

In negative sentences, we may contract the first auxiliary verb and "not":

- We hadn't been living there long before we moved to London.

How do we use the Past Perfect Continuous tense?

- The Past Perfect Continuous tense is like the Present Perfect Continuous, but it expresses longer actions in the past before another action in the past.

For example:

- Ram started waiting at 9am. I arrived at 11am. When I arrived, Ram had been waiting for two hours.

Listening

Activity 1
Fill in the blanks
How to find a job?

Nadia and Melissa are giving a presentation. Listen and work out who they are talking to and why.

Audio Script

Nadia and Melissa were graduates from the same university. After three years of experience – and success – in their field of work, they wanted to share their successes and their strategies with the seniors in their former university in the hope that they could assist those students in finding the best job they could get. With this in mind, they decided to do a presentation for the seniors. Listen to the presentation:

Melissa: Our fellow seniors, just 3 years ago, we were sitting in your places. The two of us were lucky that each of us found jobs we love, but we didn't find them easily and we didn't find them right away.

Nadia: It is a great pleasure to be here today. Both of us spent such wonderful years of our lives at this university, although you're probably at the stage at which you can't wait to have university behind you, one day you'll look back fondly on these years. Once we graduated, we were unsure of what to do and the competition for jobs was fierce.

Melissa: Once you begin looking for a job, the key question is: how do you find a job (paid or volunteer) that utilizes your skills and your passions? To discover the most suitable job for you, you need to focus on your strengths and weaknesses.

Nadia: To begin with, you should take a 'personal inventory' of your strengths and weaknesses, skills, abilities and qualifications. Do you have strong interpersonal or communication skills? Are you good at research? Do you work well in a team or do you prefer working alone? Make a list of your personal attributes. Then make another list – hopefully a short one – of the things you would like to enhance. For instance, do you have a problem meeting deadlines? Think about all of these factors thoroughly – and be honest with yourself. Once you have done that, you will be in a better position to be able to determine the most suitable type of job for you.

Melissa: In your senior year, you will have to do some research about opportunities in that area. After you have discovered what you want, your questions will become more specific. You will move from, "Where can I find employers who might hire me?" to "How do I get interviewed by my preferred employer?"

Nadia: Be creative and don't limit yourself. Match your skill, or attribute set, with opportunities. Try to imagine several different scenarios. After you narrow your focus, look at the more practical aspects for instructions.

Melissa: Don't just look in the classified advertisements for jobs. Go to job fairs, attend the school workshops and speak to your professors and academic advisors. BE PROACTIVE!

Nadia: You should also create professional CV. Attend the university workshops to find out how to create a professional looking CV . Then, when you send your CVs out, follow-up to make sure that your CV didn't just get filed away in the Human Resources Department without receiving the attention it deserves.

Melissa: Remember, the first contact probably won't hire you. However, with determination everything becomes achievable. Just set a goal, realize your abilities and give it your best shot. Keep trying until you get the job you deserve.

Listen again and select the correct answers from the questions below.

1. Nadia and Melissa graduated:
a) a year ago
b) three years ago
c) two years ago.

2. To find the most suitable job, they advised students to:
a) to relax and be calm
b) to make a list of instructors and advisors
c) to make a list of their strengths and weaknesses

3. According to Nadia and Melissa, competition for jobs was:
a) easy
b) fierce
c) Creative

4. To learn more about what jobs are available, they advised students to:
a) do some research
b) ask their friends
c) wait for a company to call them.

5. If a potential employer calls to arrange an interview, seniors should:
a) only wait
b) prepare themselves before hand
c) relax because that means they were accepted for the job.

Pronunciation

Pronunciation Focus: Diphthongs

- A diphthong is a vowel sound made by gliding continuously from the position for one vowel to that for another within the same syllable, as ((aʊ)) in down; ((aɪ)) in ride; ((ɔɪ)) in boy etc.

Writing Focus

Writing a Business Letter

As a professional or business person, business letters are an important way to communicate with other professionals or with clients. You may have already written a few business letters to request information from an institution or government department. Later you may write business letters to apply for a job or entrance to a university for a higher degree.

Planning a Business Letter

When you plan your business letters, the following steps will be helpful to you.

1. Consider your purpose. Think about the reason you are writing the letter.
2. Consider your audience. Keep in mind who you are writing to.
3. Consider your tone. Your letter will make a better impression if the tone is polite and formal.
4. Gather your ideas. Jot down exactly what you want to say or whatever information you intend to convey.
5. Be brief. Check to see that you have not included any unnecessary information. However, do not leave out any important details.

Camping in the Wilderness

Read the following article and then circle the multiple choice questions that follow.

Camping in the Wilderness

Tina and Jennifer had taken survival classes and now they wanted to see if they could really survive on their own in the wilderness. So, one weekend, they drove to a remote part of British Columbia in Canada. In the midst of the Rocky Mountains, surrounded by forest, they were ready to put their survival skills to the test.

The first task was to find a source of drinkable water. Animals would head towards fresh water so they followed animals' tracks and sure enough they found a stream of fresh mountain water. Once they found water, they had to purify it so that they could drink it. If they boiled the water for ten minutes, it would be safe to drink. Even if it looked safe before boiling, for all they knew a dead animal could be in the water up the stream and this would make it dangerous to drink. So, once they found their source of water, they had to build a fire. For this purpose, they brought matches and a lighter. Not only could the fire be used to purify the water, it would also keep animals and mosquitoes away. Animals are afraid of fires.

First, they made sure that the land next to the stream was dry, so they started digging a pit 4 – 6 inches deep and 3 feet across. Second, they collected firewood. They collected timber because timber is easy to ignite. After that, they tried to find larger branches and logs for fuel. They gathered as much wood as they needed and then they doubled that amount because they didn't want to run out in the middle of the night.

After starting the fire, they decided it was time to build a shelter for the weekend. They gathered lots of leaves so that they wouldn't be sleeping directly on the ground. Then they made a 'lean to' by putting a large fallen branch between two trees approx. 6-8 feet apart. As soon as they had that in place, they placed some sticks on a downward angle and dug them slightly into the ground to avoid movement and sliding. Then they used branches, leaves and scattered rocks as building materials and tools. They wanted to build a shelter that would protect them from the sun, wind, rain and heat. Within a few short hours, Tina and Jennifer managed to find water, start a fire and build a shelter. They felt so proud of themselves.

After working hard for several hours, both Tina and Jennifer were hungry. They decided that it was time to fish for dinner. They found a couple of sticks that they sharpened and used as spears to fish with. They rolled up their jeans, went into the stream and tried to catch fish. Those fish were much faster than Tina or Jennifer realized, but it wasn't long before they caught a nice big salmon. They couldn't wait to clean it and cook it so that they could just sit down and enjoy their evening in the wilderness.

The evening was perfect. There wasn't a cloud in the sky and the stars had never appeared more brilliant. The air smelled of trees and leaves and the camp fire provided just enough warmth to make them comfortable. Tina and Jennifer ate their dinner and thought back to their first survival class. They both grew up in a big city and, when they began, they didn't know anything about surviving in the wilderness. Only six short months later, there they were, surviving on their own and enjoying nature.

1. Tina and Jennifer had taken survival classes because:
a. they wanted to be prepared if one day they got lost on an island.
b. they wanted to see if they could really survive on their own in the wilderness.
c. a + b

2. The first task was:
   a. to find a source of drinkable water.
   b. to start a fire.
   c. to catch fish.

3. The fire could be used to:
a. purify the water.
b. Keep animals and mosquitoes away.
c. a + b

4. "They didn't want to run out in the middle of the night" means:
a. they were very afraid.
b. they wanted the branches and logs to last for the whole night.
c. they didn't want to run away alone in the forest.

5. They decided to follow animals' tracks because:
a. they realized that animals would head towards fresh water.
b. they wanted to hunt them for meat.
c. a + b

6. Tina and Jennifer were able to catch fish by using:
a. fish food.
b. a spear.
c. a fishing rod.

Natural Medicines

Read the text below and decide whether the following statements are true or false.

Natural Medicines

Many people may be allergic to the medicines that we use in hospitals or the prescription drugs given by doctors. Fortunately, there are alternatives to these medicines and all of them are natural. Many different plants have been found to have powerful healing properties that can relieve symptoms and cure ailments and diseases. Not only that, many of them don't have the same negative effects as traditional medication used nowadays. Take a look at the list below to learn more about some different plants and natural remedies to treat different ailments and diseases:

- The inner bark of the small palm tree contains chemicals that help prevent infection or pain.
- Ginger is used to treat indigestion, gas pains, stomach aches and colds. You just have to boil the root to make tea to treat all of these ailments.
- Aloe Vera treats rashes, wounds and sunburns and speeds up the healing time of wounds. It also treats hair loss!
- Lemon grass is made into tea to treat fevers, colds and coughs.
- Coco beans contain chemicals that treat asthma and caffeine.
- Banana leaves can be applied directly to a wound or burn.
- The trumpet flower may be used to open the airway in an asthma attack, but an overdose may also cause hallucinations.
- Rosy periwinkle is the basis for a new medication that is used to treat childhood leukemia.
- Cranberry juice is useful in the treatment of urinary tract infections.
- The gumbo limbo tree bark can be used to treat rashes and snakebites.
- Garlic contains allicin, which has been shown to reduce cholesterol levels, which in turn reduces the risk of heart attacks and strokes.
- Lemon balm has been shown to be effective in treating the herpes virus.
- Willow cures headaches and prevents and cures malaria.
- Marshmallow sooths sore throats.
- Chamomile teas treat upset stomachs and very high fevers.

The Future Forms and Uses

There are different ways/ forms of expressing the future. This unit will be limited to three: will+ infinitive, be going to+ infinitive and the present continuous.

Will+ infinitive can be used:

1. To make a general prediction about the future (accompanied by future expressions):

- A: What will the weather be like tomorrow?
  B: It will be rainy.
  I think it will rain.
  It will probably/ possibly rain.

- Soon every one will have his own computer.

2. To make an instant decision/ offer that points to the future:

- A: It is hot in here.
  B: I'll open the windows for you.

3. To make a request:

- Will you help me open the window?

4. To make a promise:

- I'll do my best to help you.

5. To describe what is possible to happen in a real situation (i.e. the first conditional):

- The second exam is next week. If you study hard, you will pass.

Be going to+ infinitive can be used:

1. To make a prediction about the present on the basis of evidence or what you feel definitely will happen, but may not:

- Look! It is getting cloudy. It is going to rain.

2. To describe an intention or a plan:

- I am going to buy a new car. What do you think of a Mercedes?
- Tom and Lisa are going to get married on Sunday next week.

The Present Continuous can be used to express a future arrangement/ plan of something that you have already decided (also accompanied by future expressions):

I can't see you tomorrow morning; I am meeting my parents at the airport.

- Tom and Lisa are getting married on Sunday next week.

Listening

Activity
Write It
Positive or Negative

Listen to the effects of different natural phenomena. Then, decide whether the effects of that phenomenon are positive or negative by writing it next to the effect.

Positive or Negative?

Volcano
Houses, buildings and fields get covered with ash. As long as people can get the ash off, their houses may not collapse, but often people leave their houses because of the ash since they are not always around to continually clean off their roofs. If the ash fall is really heavy, it can make it impossible for people to breathe.

Greenhouse
One of its effects is that heat emitted from the Earth is trapped in the atmosphere, providing us with a comfortable average temperature.

Air Pollution
It is dangerous to human health because it affects the body's respiratory system.

Water Pollution
It is dangerous to human health. It may cause diseases such cholera, diarrhea or typhoid.

Global Warming
Its main effect centers on an increase in the global average temperature. For humans, these changes in climate are dangerous to the people who live near the ocean shore or who already suffer from drought, flooding and poverty.

True or False
Gossip and the Media

Read the text below and decide whether the following statements are true or false.

Gossip and the Media

Many people dream of fame. To become famous, some people develop their intellectual skills and their creativity, while other people simply strive to be in the spotlight. However, those who want to be in the spotlight sometimes find that there is a negative side to fame. When they succeed, it feels glorious; however, as the public becomes more interested in celebrities, they want to find out more about the people they admire.

Many fans live vicariously through the lives of their favorite celebrities. This creates a demand for more details about celebrities' private lives than some celebrities wish to make public. In some cases this causes the media to intrude into the private lives of celebrities which can be quite stressful for them. As a genre, gossip magazines have flourished in response to the public's desire to know more about the personal lives of celebrities. Sscandalous stories are often featured inside these magazines. These stories are frequently based on a kernel of truth combined with rumors and gossip. It's a sad fact that scandals sell. While some people may consider these stories entertaining, they can be a source of frustration for the celebrities who are the subject of the story. On a positive note, even negative publicity can cause the public to watch celebrities on talk shows or in film. That's just one aspect of entertainment.

1. People who strive to be in the spotlight discover that their life has become better and easier.

TRUE FALSE

2. The media is not allowed to intrude into the private lives of celebrities because it can be quite stressful for them.

TRUE FALSE

3. As a genre, gossip magazines have flourished in response to the public's desire to know more about the personal lives of celebrities.

TRUE FALSE

4. Usually, stories written by journalists are based on a kernel of truth combined with rumors and gossip.

TRUE FALSE

5. Scandals have no positive side at all. It only brings frustration to both celebrities and to the public.

Multiple Choices
Juicy Campus.com

Read the article below and then circle the correct answers in the multiple-choice questions that follow.

In 2008, Juicy Campus.com hit universities and colleges in the United States of America. Juicy Campus is a gossip site that was launched by a graduate from Duke, named Matt Ivester. The gossip website gave students in many universities the right to publish whatever stories or gossip they wanted online. Ivester knew he would quickly lose control of the content that was on the site, but still he insisted on starting this college site. He wanted to create a place online where people could gossip.

This website had both admirers and critics. Some thought it was a great website. It provided a space for everyone to share their stories and find out about the latest gossip in their universities. On the other hand, critics described it as a place for mean-spirited and malicious lies that haunted many innocent and decent people who were trying to find a job or start a new relationship.

This issue was taken to court in response to the request of many university presidents. The U.S. Legal Code Title 47 Section 230 offers protection for private blocking and screening of offensive material. The code states that "No provider or user of an interactive computer service shall be treated as the publisher or speaker of any information provided by another information content provider." Therefore, the U.S. law protected Juicy Campus from being banned on the basis that all people, including students, have the freedom of speech. By attempting to ban this popular gossip web site at a public university, critics would have been violating one of the students' First Amendment rights, which is Freedom of Speech.

1. Juicy Campus is:
    a. the name of a university's campus.
    b. a gossip website.
    c. a place where students can gather and gossip.

2. Matt Ivester is:
    a. a brand of juice.
    b. the person who launched Juicy Campus.
    c. The university president.

3. "No provider or user of an interactive computer service shall be treated as the publisher or speaker of any information provided by another information content provider," is
    a. a law written by Matt Ivester.
    b. the students' First Amendment rights.
    c. the U.S. Legal Code Title 47 Section 230.

4. Freedom of speech is:
    a. a law written by Matt Ivester.
    b. the students' First Amendment rights.
    c. the U.S. Legal Code Title 47 Section 230.

5. Some students found the website:
    a. a place to find a job.
    b. a place where everyone could share their stories.
    c. A place where critics live.

6. Juicy Campus will:
    a. be banned.
    b. remain running.
    c. Free of charge.

7. In the second paragraph, the "lies that haunted many innocent and decent people" means:
    a. ghosts are on campus.
    b. students are visited by their former friends.
    c. Hurtful statements continually reappear to cause pain and discomfort for innocent people.

Grammar

Grammar Focus 1

Direct and indirect Speech

There are two ways of relating people's speech: direct and indirect. In direct speech we repeat the original speaker's exact words, which we also call Quoted Speech:

- He said, 'I lost my job as a reporter.'

The exact repeated words are placed between inverted commas, and a comma or colon is placed immediately before the remark. Direct speech is found in conversations in books, in plays and in quotations.

In indirect (or reported) speech we give the exact meaning or idea of a remark or a speech, without necessarily using the speaker's exact words:

- He said (that) he had lost his job as a reporter.

There is no comma after say in indirect speech. That can usually be omitted after say and tell.

When we turn direct speech into indirect, some changes are usually necessary.

Indirect speech is usually introduced by a verb in the past tense. Verbs in the direct speech have then to be changed into a corresponding past tense. The changes are shown in the following table.

Direct Speech	Indirect Speech
Present Simple 'I never eat meat,' he explained.	Past Simple He explained that he never ate meat.
Present Continuous 'I'm waiting for Ann,' he said.	Past Continuous He said (that) he was waiting for Ann.
Present Perfect 'I have found a flat,' he said.	Past Perfect He said (that) he had found a flat.

Pronouns usually change from first or second to third person except when the speaker is reporting his own words:

- He said, 'I've forgotten to fasten my seat belt.'

  He said that he had forgotten to fasten his seat belt.

- I said, 'I like my new house.'

  I said that I liked my new house. (Speaker reporting his own words)

Expressions of Time and Place in Reported Speech

Adverbs and adverbial phrases of time change as follows.

Direct	Indirect
Today	That day
Yesterday	The day before
The day before yesterday	Two days before
Tomorrow	The next day / the following day
The day after tomorrow	In two days' time
Next week / year etc.	The following week / year etc.
Last week / year etc.	The previous week / year etc.
A year etc. ago	A year before / the previous year

- 'I'll do it tomorrow,' he promised

He promised that he would do it the next day.

- 'I am starting the day after tomorrow, mother,' he said.

He told his mother that he was starting in two days' time.

Using Say vs. Tell

1. Say can introduce a statement or follow it:

- Tom said, 'I've just heard the news'

Or

'I've just heard the news,' Tom said.

2. Tell requires the person addressed:

Tell me. He told us. I'll tell Tom.

Activity 1
True or False
Did you know?

Listen to the audio script and decide whether the following statements are true or false.

Audio Script

In general, the term "media" refers to different means of communication. Television, radio, newspapers and the internet are considered to be different types of media. Thanks to technology, it's much easier to find out about many things today than it used to be.

By simply turning on your television, you can learn about politics and history in the making. Al Jazeera, the BBC and CNN provide you with different points of view about events that take place all over the world. People watch television for many purposes. Some watch television for entertainment, others watch documentaries to inform themselves about different topics and others watch television as a bonding ritual with their families.

The radio is still popular today as well. Many people listen to the news or for information about traffic to see which roads to take when traveling. Another example which demonstrates the importance of radio is when a natural disaster occurs. Often when a natural disaster takes place, the electricity goes off. You can turn on the radio in that case, using batteries, to listen to the useful tips and guidelines to survive that natural disaster.

Then there is the Internet. Many people now simply point and click their way through their favourite online newspaper to catch up on current events. By looking at blogs, you can get the unofficial stories about some topics. Unlike just a few decades ago, thanks to the Internet, it's easy to find out what everyday people from far away think about important developments by looking at blogs or forums on topics you are interested in.

The modern media has also changed the face of contemporary education. Nowadays more and more courses, like this one, are delivered by way of the Internet and web-based technologies. This means that the way instructors are delivering these courses has also been transformed from the old days of writing on blackboards. In addition to this, students today can access the most reliable and current information from academic journals in online databases. That means no more spending hours and hours in the library and dragging home enormous piles of books to complete assignments.

1. Television, radio, newspapers and the media are considered to be different types of media.

TRUE FALSE

2. The modern media has changed the way courses are being taught today.

TRUE FALSE

3. People use the television for entertainment only.

TRUE FALSE

4. Media has advantages only, without any disadvantages.

Adapting

Adapting

Lucas, a senior in high school, played basketball since he was a young boy. Even today, he loves basketball. Throughout the years, this sport provided him with a positive outlet for his energy. At times life can be challenging, but it's how we adapt to those challenges that often determines how rewarding our lives will be. Lucas stands as one example of a courageous young man who learned to deal with unexpected turns and make the best of his life.

One day, after playing basketball, Lucas had a routine medical checkup. Much to his amazement, his physician told him that he had a heart condition. Lucas was afraid that this condition would prevent him from playing his favourite sport. With this in mind, he told everyone, including his coach, that he was fine. He continued playing as if nothing happened. To him, heaven was playing with his teammates, defending his side of the court, and hearing the cheers from the audience. Sadly, one day, Lucas collapsed while he was winning the championship. He had a heart attack during the last minutes of the game. He survived it, but he realized that he had to accept his health condition and find alternative ways to release his energy.

As much as he loved basketball, as a result of his heart condition, he realized that there was so much more to life. Life, he realized, was precious. Basketball is still important to him, but now he just watches games instead of playing in them. Instead of channeling his energy into playing sports, he now channels it into being a sports photographer and he is every bit as passionate about that as he was about playing.

1. Life will be more rewarding if you adapt to the challenges you face.

TRUE FALSE

2. It is very important to have a routine medical checkup.

TRUE FALSE

3. Lucas lied to everyone about his heart condition.

TRUE FALSE

4. Lucas collapsed during the first minutes of the final game.

TRUE FALSE

5. Lucas could not play basketball anymore; he became a sports photographer instead.

TRUE FALSE

6. Lucas was happier when he used to play in the game than just watching it.

Grammar

Grammar Focus 1: First Conditional

The first conditional is used for real or possible situations. The situations will occur if a specific condition is fulfilled.

If she eats less, she will lose weight.
If Mohammad quits smoking, he will feel much better.
He will win the marathon unless he injures himself from all that exercise.
How do you form the first conditional?

Simply use the present simple in the if clause + comma + base form of the will verb in the result clause
Or

Place the result clause first and do not use a comma between clauses.
If he finishes on time, we will go to the movies.
OR

We will go to the movies if he finishes on time.

Grammar Focus 2 :Second Conditional

Type 2 conditionals are used to express imaginary situations which are contrary to facts in the present, and therefore; are unlikely to happen in the present or future. You can use were for all persons in the if-clause.

We cal also use the structure If I were you ... to give advice.

If Clause: if + past simple (or) past continuous
Main Clause: would/could/might + present bare infinitive

For example:

- If I went to the stadium early, I could get front row seats.
- If it wasn't so late, we could go on a picnic.
- If I were you, I would buy the second edition.

Grammar Focus 3: Third Conditional

Type 3 conditionals are used to express imaginary situations which are contrary to facts in the past. They are also used to express regrets or criticism.

If Clause: if + past perfect (or) past perfect continuous
Main Clause: would/could/might + perfect bare infinitive

For example:

- If we had known, we would have called him earlier.
- If he had been watching the news, he would have known about the accident.

Note :

In the first conditional the word unless is used to mean if he/she/it doesn't.

Interesting Facts

For centuries people have been designing, playing and organizing sports. For instance, a long time ago, ancient Egyptians played a game that was very similar to bowling. Instead of using pins and a ball, they used stones as pins and smaller stones as a ball. Similarly, the ancient Romans first played a game that was very much like the game we now know as golf. To play it, they used bent wooden sticks and a leather ball stuffed with feathers. Throughout the ages, these games became increasingly popular and more and more sports were invented.

In fact, sports became so popular that in 776 B.C. the first ancient Greek Olympic Games were held. Unfortunately, many of today's most popular sports are very dangerous. American football, for instance, has the highest injury rate of all the popular sports. The injury rate for football is twelve times higher than that for basketball! Hockey is also very dangerous. In addition to sports played in teams, sports such as boxing are also incredibly dangerous. Boxers are known to have suffered brain damage from blows they have suffered to the head. So, being an athlete is not without considerable risks.

Today, athletes can earn enormous amounts of money for playing sports. In fact, many of them earn millions for simply playing the sport they love and for endorsing products as a result of their fame as sports celebrities. Just look at Tiger Woods or Ronaldino. Like many famous athletes, they've earned a fortune playing sports and endorsing products. As time goes on, people just love watching sports and watching their favorite athletes play.

1. Ancient Egyptians played a game like golf using large stones set up as pins and small stones as a ball.

TRUE FALSE

2. Ancient Egyptians first played a game like golf using bent wooden sticks and a leather ball stuffed with feathers.

TRUE FALSE

3. The most dangerous sport is hockey.

TRUE FALSE

4. football is the most second injurious sport in the world.

Focus 1

Unstressed 'That'

We tend to use the word 'that' a lot in our sentences. Sometimes, your speech will sound better if you don't stress the word 'that', in fact, the word 'that' can be omitted in most sentences.

Here are two examples to show when the word 'that' should be stressed and when it shouldn't:

- John said that it was a very silly idea. (In this sentence, the word 'that' should be unstressed because the sentence would sound better if it was: John said it was a very silly idea.)

- I told you that! (In this sentence, the word 'that' should be stressed because the speaker is making a point when stressing it.
